

About Wings Section

From 1959 until 1975, some of this land was incorporated into a 200-acre farm belonging to William and Mary Ann Wing. William and his brother Walter operated a produce shipping company known as “WilWal, Incorporated,” selling fruits and vegetables to Asian farm markets across the New York City metropolitan region. The county acquired 60 acres of the farm and floodplain along the South Branch in 1975. Additional acreage was purchased later, bringing the present total to 90 acres.

The Wings Section is part of the 1000-acre South Branch Reservation, a preserved greenway along the South Branch of the Raritan River offering recreational opportunities to explore its amazing natural resources up close.
